

Emergency aid for your international activities

The Corona crisis will put a heavy burden on the global economy. With aid packages, governments are trying to mitigate a widespread economic collapse.

Important corporate projects in various stages of implementation abroad are currently on hold. Even European countries are bringing back fellow countrymen to their home countries in return campaigns. This situation will certainly continue for a few months. Internationally experienced interim managers, who have already successfully implemented numerous projects abroad, sometimes under challenging conditions, can support you at short notice.

DDIM has about 100 managers with international experience. The specialist group "International" consists of experts who, from many years of international activity, maintain functioning professional networks on all continents. In addition to language, culture and knowledge of the country, they have resilient personal relationships with experts from numerous industries and functions on site, which complement each other.

Burning issues require the timely deployment of resilient, effective managers, even in unfamiliar surroundings, with prudence and an appropriate approach on site. In addition to the financial clean-up work, strategic projects, the alignment of national companies, the restoration or redefinition and installation of value chains in procurement and sales are often the priorities that need to be addressed in the short term.

As an immediate support, managers are available for an orientation meeting.

They have experience and networks, e.g. in many regions of the world such as the Near, Middle and Far East, in North and South America and all European countries.

Our interim managers have experience in all major industrial sectors and in essential functions such as general management, project management in all company-relevant functional areas

If you want to discuss these topics with one of our members at short notice, please write to international@ddim.de . We will contact you as soon as possible.

International Section of the DDIM
Dachgesellschaft Deutsches Interim Management e.V.